Open young eyes to reality

experience polluted places and spark a passion for change

Bring young people into close contact with polluted and poorly maintained places to open their eyes to reality.

For example, the first activity I participated in at Fontaniva, where we counted the waste in the Camazzole lake, surprised me a lot and made me reflect deeply on the issue of sustainability.

Build bonds, raise awareness & protect the planet.

One small action
at a time.

Raise awareness and interest in sustainability through activities that create a familiar atmosphere among girls eager to protect the environment and contribute with small actions in the process.

Start a green career

Learn, laugh, and make time fly with new friends!

I recommend young girls to participate in sustainable work because it's fun, you make new friends, you learn new things, but most of all, spending an afternoon together makes time fly by.
